

Wetland Ecology Field Trip – April 28, 2008 (Rain or Shine)

Getting to the Park

The Interpretive Center is located at 15655 SW Millikan Blvd., in Beaverton, Oregon.

By Public Transit

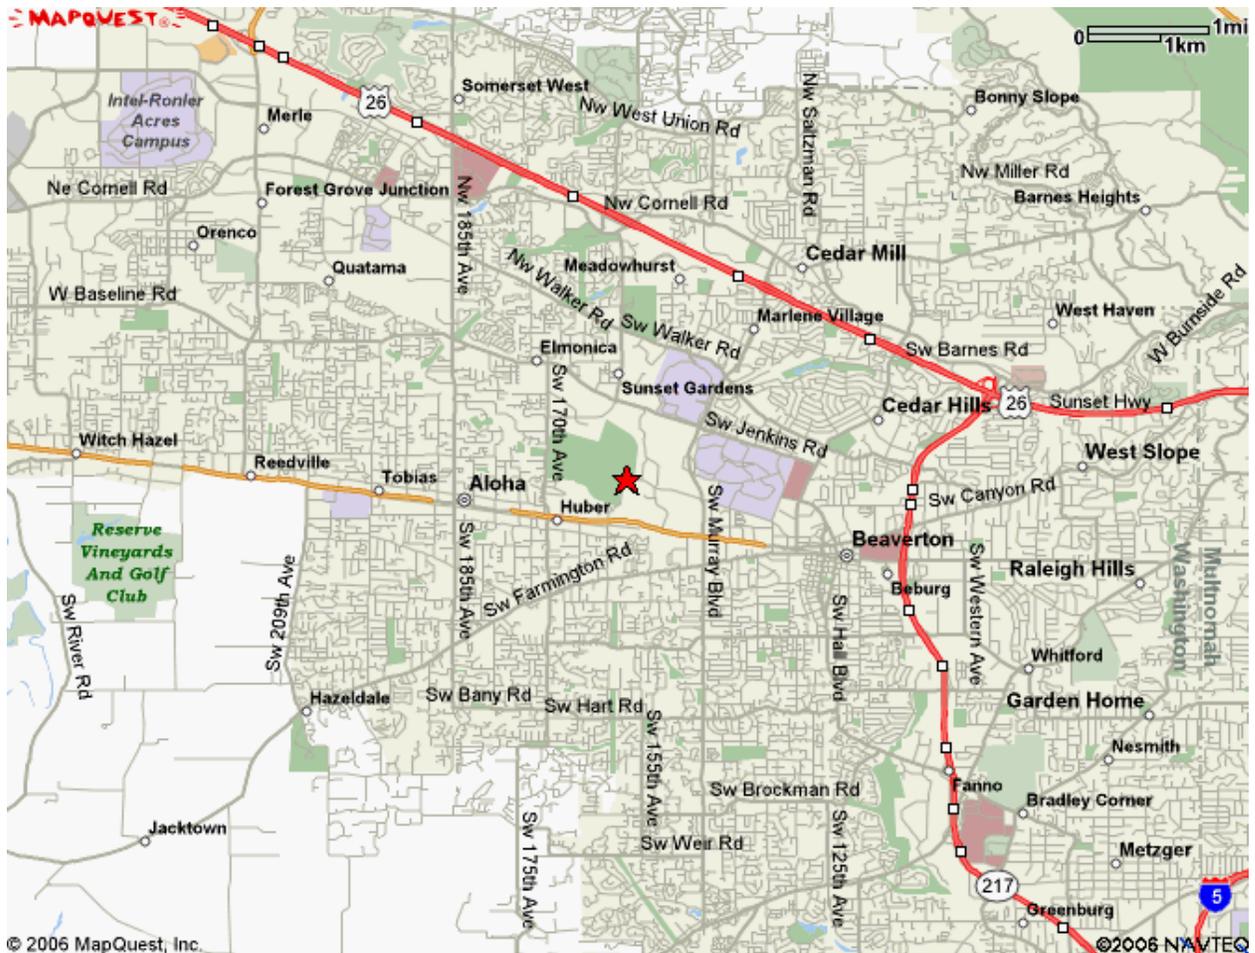

The park is easily reached via TriMet's Westside Light Rail. Get off at the Merlo Road/158th Station. Turn left, cross the tracks and make a left turn onto the asphalt path. This is the Oak Trail. It will lead you into the Park and to the Interpretive Center (about 3/4 of a mile away). For other public transit directions log on to www.trimet.org.

From Hwy. 217 or TV Hwy.

Take Oregon 8/Canyon Rd/Tualatin Valley (TV) Hwy. approximately 2 miles west. SW Millikan Blvd. is on the north side, between SW Murray and SW 170th. Go north on 160th, which becomes Millikan Blvd. The Park is approximately 1/2 mile from the intersection on your left. If you pass a set of train tracks, you have gone too far.

From Hwy. 26 or Murray Blvd.

From Hwy. 26, go south on Murray for approximately 1.5 miles. From Murray, go west on SW Millikan Way, which becomes SW Millikan Blvd. The Interpretive Center is approximately 3/4 mile from the intersection. We are about 200 feet past the second set of railroad tracks on your right.

We will stay on a paved trail, so boots are not necessary. We will examine wetland soils, so you may get dirty – dress appropriately for the field activities and the weather.
