

Tuesday July 14th 2009

- Home
- This week's print edition
- Daily news analysis
- Opinion
  - All opinion
  - Leaders
  - Letters to the Editor
  - Blogs
  - Columns
  - KAL's cartoons
  - Correspondent's diary
  - Economist debates

- World politics
  - All world politics
  - Politics this week
  - International
- United States
  - The Americas
  - Asia
  - Middle East and Africa
  - Europe
  - Britain
- Special reports
  - Business and finance
    - About our new page
    - All business and finance
    - Business this week
    - Economics focus
    - Management
    - Business education
    - Economics A-Z

- Markets and data
  - All markets and data
  - Daily chart
  - Weekly indicators
  - World markets
  - Currencies
  - Rankings
  - Big Mac index

- Science and technology
  - About our new page
  - All science and technology
  - Technology Quarterly
  - Technology Monitor

- Books and arts
  - All books and arts
  - Style guide

- People
  - People
  - Obituaries

- Diversions

- Audio and video
  - Audio and video library
  - Audio edition

- The World In
  - The World in 2009
  - The World in 2008
  - The World in 2007
  - The World in 2006
  - The World in 2005
  - The World in 2004

- Research tools
  - All research tools
  - Articles by subject
  - Backgrounders

United States

Dachshund racing
Dogs in a hurry

Apr 30th 2009 | BUDA, TEXAS
 From The Economist print edition

Stubby-legged racers take off

Illustration by Claudio Munoz

ROSCOE, a piebald dachshund, was the runt of his litter. No one wanted to buy him. So the breeder gave him to Jeremy Dingle, who soon realised that he had a special pup, now a top dog in the dachshund-racing world. Fresh from victory in Lubbock, Texas, Roscoe was a potential winner as he prepared this week for the semi-final of the Wiener Dog Races in Buda.

Dachshunds, sometimes known as wiener or sausage dogs, are one of the most popular breeds in America. Racing the little creatures got a boost in 1993 when it was featured in a beer advertisement. Now there are dozens of races each year, mostly in southern and western states. (New England eschews the pastime, although there are fancy-dress parties for dachshunds in New York's Washington Square Park.) The largest event, the Wienerschnitzel Wiener Nationals in southern California, sponsored by a chain of hot-dog restaurants, attracts tens of thousands of visitors.

A wiener dog at full throttle, flying down the lane with his ears inside out and tongue flapping, is a sight worth seeing. And the races return some civic benefits. The Buda event, in which no fewer than 468 dachshunds were taking part, is sponsored by the local Lions Club and has proved to be their best fund-raiser. Proceeds go to scholarships, summer camps and eye care.

The Dachshund Club of America is opposed to wiener-dog racing on the ground that it is hard on the dogs. But at this point the competitions are hardly cutthroat, and the racers are pets first and foremost. In Buda, one owner bragged that her dachshund could catch a bee in its mouth, and release it unharmed.

The young sport is even the subject of a new documentary film, "Wiener Takes All". Shane MacDougall, the documentarian, says that people track him down every week for advice on how to start their own races. Researching the film during the phase of the Iraq war when anti-French sentiment led some Americans to call their chips freedom-fries, he stumbled upon a historical coincidence: during the first world war patriotic owners renamed their dachshunds "liberty pups". "I think we just need to send more

- Comment (10)
- Recommend (22)
- E-mail
- Share
- Print
- Reprints & permissions

Related Items

From The Economist
 Dog-racing's desperate comeback
ES
 Mar 27th 2008

Country briefing
 United States

More articles about...
 Sports and games

Websites
 The Buda Lions Club has information about the event. See also the Dachshund Club of America, the Wienerschnitzel Wiener Nationals and "Wiener Takes All".

Advertisement

economics A-Z
Special reports
Style guide

Country briefings
All country briefings
China
India
Brazil
United States
Russia

My account home

Newsletters and alerts
Manage my newsletters
Manage my e-mail alerts
Manage my RSS feeds
Manage special-offer alerts
More »

Print subscriptions
Subscribe to The Economist
Renew my subscription
Change my print subscription delivery, billing or e-mail address
Pay my bill
Activate premium online access
Report a missing copy
Suspend my subscription
More »

Digital subscriptions
Subscribe to Economist.com
Manage my subscription
Mobile edition
Audio edition
Download screensaver
More »

Classifieds and jobs

The Economist Group
About the Economist Group
Economist Intelligence Unit
Economist Conferences
Intelligent Life
CFO
Roll Call
European Voice
EuroFinance
Reprints and permissions

EIU online store

Economist shop

Advertisement

wiener dogs to the United Nations," suggests Mr MacDougall.

Back to top ^^

Readers' comments

Readers have commented on this article (the window for new comments is now closed).

View all comments \(10\)

Want more? Subscribe to The Economist and get the week's most relevant news and analysis.

Advertisement

Your opinion could give you a chance to win $1000! TAKE A SURVEY Start »

Survey and chance to win provided by Safecount.net and Dynamic Logic. safecount.net

Classified ads

Maximise potential in international trade with RBS - Read our FREE report

Full-time faculty position
Top graduate school in Lima, Peru searches for Ph.D / DBA graduates from recognized universities.

For more information, click here.

Manufacturing Excellence Awards 2009

On Thursday we will be celebrating the best that British business has to offer.

Read more about the UK's premier manufacturing benchmarking scheme and its top 20 firms that have reached the prestigious final.

FSA — PRUDENTIAL POLICY

Associates, Senior Associates & Technical Specialists — Wholesale and Prudential Policy Division

click here to apply

Amnesty International

Secretary General

Nottingham University Business School

Director - Christel DeHaan Tourism & Travel Research Institute

Sponsor's feature

About sponsorship